David:

More good news--this time from Michael Kurtz. My plan now is to put together a presentation for our Editorial Committee, which meets on Friday, May 12th. Schedule's kinda tight because we have to mail all such material (for your project and a number of other authors slated for consideration next week) by Wednesday, May 3. But I'm confident that I can make it. And, if I do, then I should be able to call you by May 12th or 15th at the latest with even more very good news--i.e., the Committee supports our offering you a book contract. So thanks again for all your help in making my case on your behalf all the more persuasive.

Mike:
Sorry for the one-day delay in responding, but we were closed all last week for the Spring break, and I did not receive the Wrone response until Monday. Here is my response:

I believe that David Wrone has indeed made a good-faith effort to address my concerns, even though disagreements remain. His response indicates to me that he will indeed produce a very valuable addition to the JFK assassination literature. It will be certain to provoke considerable debate, but after all, isn't that one of the fundamental reasons for academic presses to publish books? In short, I definitely recommend publication.

I will respond at length later.

Since you offered five additional books, I would like, if possible, five additional copies of Toplin's OLIVER STONE'S USA.
